

THE ARABIC SPRINGS AND THE RADICAL ISLAMISM

The popular revolutions in good part of the Muslim countries have surprised everyone in the world and were received initially as a breath of fresh air towards the democracy, but now they raise questions and create worry.

And the essential question is about the future of these countries and in consequence that of the international community will be surer, opened, nobody has the response but yes the dread. Indications that exist justify the worry.

Up to the moment, the balance sheet provides an unequal panorama. Three Dictatorships have fallen - Tunisia, Egypt and Libya - Other countries, in order to avoid predictable snaps; they have initiated processes of reform towards one major opening: "Reform of the Constitution"

The case of Egypt, in the relating to the moment thing, is different, but in the bottom one makes alike him enough. Soon they will hold an election legislative under the protection of the reforms Constitutional of last March. The worrying indication is that you fell Reforms were negotiated before, for the Military Meeting, with Muslim brothers. The constitutional text dedicates to the Islam as religion of State. Not different at all from the previous situation, but only in the formal thing.

Sharia will continue being the principal source of the right. The calls to Democracy that there acclaimed the first voices of the movement of the Plaza of Liberation they remained like that in the oblivion.

Surprising it would be that Gaddafi's regime was surviving the current pressure.

It will be able only, after his definitive fall a process of national reconstruction that he presents very arduous. The radical Islamism will appear as the only element capable of agglutinating the tribes, after so many blood and rancor. Already it has had his first success. The president of the National Transitory Advice has initiated already Process of contacts to provide to the country of a new Constitution in that Sharia will be the principal source of the right.

It supports the Qaida the Arabic spring. Zawahiri, the successor of Osama Bin Laden, It has made us know his " I support the revolts of the Arabic spring and wait that There will be established an authentic Islam and governments based on the Islamic law"

Why?

In conclusion, the Arabic spring, winter phenomenon, is already in his summer without the results are palpable. There are so many mysteries and incertitude Up to Doubts, hopes and dreads stay moment. There will be necessary to wait for the new ones Constitutional texts in the making and to trust in the desires of conviviality of his Populations.

This revolution will bring such a longed democratization of the Islamic world or on the contrary his major radicalization? In any case, nothing will be like before.
