8 PRESENTATIONS

ALBANIA

The Post-Byzantine churches in Voskopoja and Vithkuqi situated in southeastern Albania, are the most representative monuments of 17th-18th-century ecclesiastical art in the Balkans and are masterpieces of the post-Byzantine style. War, plundering and natural disasters have seriously damaged this group of 12 churches.

AUSTRIA

The Historic Centre of Vienna has immense significance to Europe's tangible and intangible culture, as a city of great architectural importance and as an exceptional centre for the development of the arts. In 2001, it was added to the UNESCO World Heritage List, in 2017, on the UNESCO List of World Heritage in Danger.

BULGARIA

Located in the mountains in the heart of Bulgaria, the Buzludzha Monument is an imposing example of 20th-century architecture. Built in 1981 to be the House-Monument of the then ruling Bulgarian Communist Party, the structure was in use for just 8 years and is now in a serious state of disrepair.

GEORGIA

The David Gareji Monasteries and Hermitage are located in Eastern Georgia, on the semi-desert Iori plateau and partly extend into neighbouring Azerbaijan. Dating back to the 6th-century, the site is comprised of 22 rock-hewn monasteries and more than 5,000 sanctuaries and cave-cells.

ROMANIA

Constanta Casino has become a landmark of the Black Sea shore. Daniel Renard, the Swiss Romanian architect who designed the building, opted for a lavish expression of Art Nouveau to reflect Romania's modernisation during the reign of Carol I. After many years of alternating commercial and state responsibility for the building's care, the Casino was abandoned in the 2000s.

TURKEY

The Prinkipo Greek Orphanage is considered to be the largest wooden building in Europe and the second largest in the world. Located on Prinkipo, on the Princes' Islands, off the coast of Istanbul, it was built in 1899 to the design of French architect Alexandre Vallaury. The timber-framed structure features elaborately decorated wooden columns in the grand hall and panelled ceilings with decorative mouldings.

UK

The Grimsby Ice Factory is considered to be the oldest ice factory in the United Kingdom. Designed by the engineer W. F. Cott, the Factory dates back to 1900, and it is a substantial Grade II listed red brick industrial building. The site is arguably the most prominent physical reminder of the fishing and maritime heritage of Grimsby, which was the largest fishing port in the world at the start of the 20th century. The Factory has been in a state of serious decline since its closure in 1990.

ROMANIA

Roşia Montană is located in the Valea Roşiei, through which the small river Roşia Montană flows. The rich mineral resources of the area have been exploited since Roman times or before. The state-run gold mine closed in late 2006 in advance of Romania's accession to the EU. A Canadian based company plan to open a new mine at the location.
